Garry Adelman on 4D Civil War Photography Extravaganza

BY BRUCE ALLARDICE

Join us on June 12th as we welcome Garry Adelman for a lively and multi-dimensional Civil War photography extravaganza. The Civil War was the first war to be extensively photographed and, for the first time in history, the public was exposed to real-life images of the gruesome toll of battle. Through then-and-now photographs, as well as 3-D (and even 4-D) techniques.

Mr. Adelman will tell the story of the Civil War via the intensive and revolutionary wet-plate photography process and the truly unique individuals involved in the birth of photojournalism. Learn how early photographs were made, used, distributed and, thus, how they changed our understanding of the American Civil War. The latest photo-related discoveries and scholarship will be covered.

A graduate of Michigan State University and Shippensburg University of Pennsylvania,

Garry Adelman is the award-winning author, co-author or editor of 20 books and 35 articles on the Civil War. He is the vice president of the Center for Civil War Photography and has been a Licensed Battlefield Guide at Gettysburg for 20 years. He has appeared on numerous productions shown on the BBC, C-Span, Pennsylvania Cable Network and on HISTORY. He works full time as Director of History and Education at the Civil War Trust.

$115K Needed For Antietam Land

(May 2015 Civil War News)

WASHINGTON – With $460,000 in leadership gifts and commitments in hand, the Civil War Trust needs an additional $115,000 by June 30 in order to buy what Trust President James Lighthizer calls “The Epicenter of Antietam.”

The tract has been described as the most blood-soaked ground on the entire Sept. 17, 1862, battlefield which saw the single bloodiest day in American history.

“This 44-acre piece of central battlefield land is one of the most important... one of the most significant... one of the most priceless parcels of hallowed ground you and I have ever had the chance to save,” said Lighthizer.

The $575,000 total cost includes the land, removing the modern house and replanting a portion of the East Woods.

The Trust must provide the purchase and restoration funds without assistance because the property is an “in-holding” within park boundaries and not eligible for federal matching grant money. State funds are not available.

Lighthizer said that although some restrictions were voluntarily placed on the property years ago by the landowner, “it is most emphatically not fully protected, and will not be, until we purchase it.”

He said the greatest threat was the possibility that it could be sold to a buyer who might try to replace the farmhouse with a “McMansion” in the heart of the Antietam battlefield, much as what happened on Fleetwood Hill at Brandy Station Battlefield.

Historians agree on the site’s significance. James McPherson said, “To acquire this property and restore the same view that Hooker and his men saw on that fateful morning would be one of the greatest coups in the history of battlefield preservation.”

Robert K. Krick noted that over nearly a half-century of leading battlefield tours he has had to describe “the savage maelstrom of battle on that field” standing along its boundary, without access to the ground.

“Any way today’s visitor looks at it, this 44-acre tract is as vital to an understanding and interpretation of the morning’s fight – for Miller’s cornfield and the West Woods slaughter – as any other land that has been preserved at Antietam,” said Ed Bearss.

For James I. Robertson Jr., “That tract of land, consecrated by the blood of patriots, is a holy memorial to American courage and sacrifice. Preserving it for all time to come is a move that the whole nation should applaud.”

Gettysburg Guides Celebrate 100 Years

By Kathryn Jorgensen (May 2015 Civil War News)

GETTYSBURG, PA. — As Civil War 150th commemorations come to a close, the 100th anniversary of licensed battlefield guides is being celebrated in Gettysburg.

Special programs and articles will recognize the 1915 formalization of professional guiding. The Guides' history will be related in the July Civil War News. The Gettysburg Times is running monthly columns and Celebrate Gettysburg magazine will have a story in its May/June issue.

Association of Licensed Battlefield Guides (ALBG) President Joseph Mieczkowski says, "We want people to better understand the history of the organization and why it's so special."

He speaks with pride of the Guides' sense of tradition and passion for interpreting the Battle of Gettysburg — a far cry from the earliest days of Gettysburg tourism when "guides" accosted travelers and regaled them with facts and fiction.

The War Department, which managed the battlefield, responded to complaints about the quality of tours by taking over and starting licensing. The ALBG now has 124 licensed members, four retired emeritus and 197 associate members. Mieczkowski says about 100 are active tour guides.

The ALBG's 100th year began with a sold-out annual Spring Seminar, which focused on "The Union Right Flank — The Other High Ground." The Sept. 11-12 Fall Seminar theme is "The battle between the barns — Peach Orchard to Bliss Farm."

Lincoln portrayer Jim Getty was scheduled for the late April Visiting Scholars Program banquet at the Dobbin House to talk about his life as Lincoln and interactions with the battlefield guides.

In June Adams County Winery will host a picnic for guides — there may even be a special bottling with the association's logo.

The Guides' fourth annual Tuesday evening "Walks Through History" series will feature 14 guided tours from June to September. Each walk will have a specific topic "telling stories of the battlefield that tourists can't get on the regular tours," says Mieczkowski.

Dates for the 5:30 p.m. walks are June 9, 16, 23, 30; July 7, 14, 21, 28; Aug. 4, 11, 18, 25; and Sept. 1, 8. People who sign up for six walks, can enroll for a seventh free.

Guides will be giving free 6 p.m. tours of Soldiers' National Cemetery this summer. Mieczkowski notes that many guides, some of whom were veterans or ancestors of today's guides, are buried in nearby Evergreen Cemetery.

The ALBG also expects to have some exhibits in the park visitor center to show artifacts including old uniforms and photos.

The 100th anniversary of the first licensed battlefield tour will be celebrated at a visitor center banquet on Oct. 17.

A November memorial service will be held at Price of Peace Episcopal Church, which was built as a monument to the battle. Mieczkowski says, "It will honor the men and women who were telling the stories of the people who fought here."

Proceeds from sale of centennial pins with the ALBG logo will help offset costs of the anniversary programs. Mieczkowski says the Gettysburg Foundation is providing significant support to the Guides' commemorations.

The guiding season is busy with school groups from April to June, summer anniversary events and vacationers, and then fall foliage visitors, but Mieczkowski says "any time" is a good time to see the battlefield.

Visitors can tour on foot, by car or bus, or on a horse, scooter or Segway. Whatever they want, a Gettysburg Licensed Battlefield Guide will be there.

"If folks wish to tour the field this year with a licensed battlefield guide advance reservations are suggested," Mieczkowski says. "They won't be disappointed."

New Book on Camp Douglas

More Confederate soldiers died in Chicago's Camp Douglas than on any Civil War battlefield. Originally constructed in 1861 to train forty thousand Union soldiers from the northern third of Illinois, it was converted to a prison camp in 1862. Nearly thirty thousand Confederate prisoners were housed there until it was shut down in 1865. Today, the history of the camp ranges from unknown to deeply misunderstood. David Keller offers a modern perspective of Camp Douglas and a key piece of scholarship in reckoning with the legacy of other military prisons.
